A small indie team based in Almonte, Ontario (Canada). We have 5 backgrounds of experience in game dev (from producer to programmer to the sound guy). Our first game was a horror themed title called The Edge. We sold the game with press coverage and a handful of modded reviews. Subsequently, we decided to do our second game, Another Harvest, to a more sci-fi based premise. After not having progressed in either of our projects for some time, we decided to put our collective creative minds to work on a new game. The result was Disturbing Forest. Why Disturbing Forest? During the process of doing Another Harvest, we had become great friends with the guy behind Moons of Jupiter. He invited us to his website and told us about a game he was working on called Chromeria. After playing Chromeria, we were hooked. We have gained a lot of inspiration from that game and decided that we wanted to create our own tiny sci-fi survival horror game. By the way, thanks Moons of Jupiter! :) How to Play Disturbing Forest: Every tile has a surface area. Some tiles are poisonous (damage you if you try to walk on them). Some tiles are toxic (poisonous if you try to pick them up, but not hurt you) Some tiles are harmful to your plants (might hurt your plants if you take them). Bits and pieces are always breaking or dying. The world around you is always changing. There is always something new to do. Explore the ocean ...in a disturbing way. This has been put up for an EXTENDED period due to the help of the developer and the support of the community. Love Letter will feature: - Internet/Network play - Multiplayer - Single player - Co-op - Questing - Lots and lots of new plots - More built in humor and comedy - Includes a re-imagined journaling system for more meaningful and detailed progress tracking - New possibility systems - Perhaps some new enemy encounters with new mechanics - [...]

: Elliptical Theoria - Part I “‘Of Chaos and Eternity: A Study in the Horizon’ by Julian Jaynes. In Christian symbols, ellipse is the figure of Salvation.” “The true original light is actually spiritual, and the figure on the log of wood, the dial on the clock, the symbolic rose, the scarlet flower, the square on a piece of paper, are all symbols of this reality. The symbol thus conveys far more of Truth than does the representative image. We know this symbol does not ‘stand for’ the object symbolized, but is the object itself;

Q: How to get a local mac address from a windows device using scapy I am trying to get the local mac address of a pc connected to my network and passing it as a host to scapy sniffer but the output shows: stackexchange.mac doesn't exist in namespace whereas scapy works fine with other static addresses. How can I fix this issue? code I used: `#!/usr/bin/env python from scapy.all import * fname = 'com5' subnet = '192.168.0.0/24' def scapyMAC(sniff_iface='eth0'): print 'Detecting'+ fname +'with'+ sniff_iface ## First, you will need to figure out the address of your interface by activating ## the script with python, and then typing "ip link show " | grep "eth" mac = sniff(iface=sniff_iface, prn=lambda x : "\t" + x.getlayer(Raw).get(0).dst) print ' Detected MAC address (SRC MAC)' + mac mac_print = str(mac[0]) return mac_print def main(): var1 = raw_input("Enter host IP: ") ## bruteforce scan. Note that you have to type in a interface "eth0" or "enp2s0" etc to get the mac. ## You can't bruteforce to specific interface because there are often interfaces`
